

Sanjana G.
Girl Scout Ambassador

Sanjana is a high school junior and has been a Girl Scout for over ten years. She is co-founder of Careers in Medicine, which educates middle schoolers in her community about various medical specialties through interactive sessions, guest speakers, projects, and competitions. For her Bronze Award, Sanjana partnered with Boston Children's Hospital to host a "Fun Day" for the siblings of patients. For her Silver Award, she created a kid-friendly website featuring educational material on COVID-19. Sanjana hopes to continue to help educate underserved communities and has raised funds for educational NGOs through hosting entrepreneurship and hackathon incubators, as well as various remote and in-person campaigns for causes she is passionate about. Sanjana aspires to pursue a career in the medical field.
